

Y un poema
de Carmen O. Menéndez:

"La vieja sabiduría del teiteiro".

Premio especial en Filadelfia, 2004.

The Thatcher's Old Wisdom

(To Herminio, a transhumant thatcher in Asturias)

*The moon is out and is the thatcher's time, when he owns the green valley,
and he owns the great heights.*

*The broom is green and soft and is the thatcher's time, when the bear looks for berries,
and the fox hides in the dark.*

I follow the trails of wild capercaillies in search for the sounds

that the city kills every morning and night.

*The masters are arguing on sustainable theories in concrete constructions.
It pays now to argue with power points in the city.*

*While they forget that the thatcher is still out,
twinning green broom and white moonlight,
for life.*

(foto de Carmen-Oliva con Herminio en su casa de La Peral)

Carmen O. Menéndez

‘The Thatcher's Old Wisdom’

Philadelphia ISP Poetry Convention prizewinner in 2004.

Poem, copyright © 2004 by Carmen O. Menéndez - Appearing on From the Fishhouse with permission-Audio file, copyright © 2005, From the Fishhouse

Posted on July 6, 2005 5:58 AM

- Ver libro Teitos
- Otros trabajos de Carmen O. Menéndez
- Volver a ÍNDICE de la página completa